CURIOUS COMMONS · BRAND RESOURCES

Hyderabad Tech Week Media kit.

Use these files to introduce the week, credit the organiser, or prepare an approved collaboration.

01 / IDENTITY

The name comes first.

Use the full event name on first mention. HTW is our compact mark, not a replacement for a readable event title. The separate Curious Commons identity identifies the organiser.

Primary wordmark

One-colour monogram

Reverse monogram

Profile picture

02 / USE WITH CARE

Give it room.

Leave clear space of at least half a capital letter's height around the wordmark. Use the supplied artwork: do not stretch, rotate, redraw, add shadows, or place it on a busy image.

Profile pictures use a pure-white background. Keep all letters inside the circular crop. Use SVG for scalable artwork and the 2048 px profile PNG for social accounts.

Keep partner marks separate and clearly labelled. A logo in this kit is not permission to announce a partnership. Confirm dates, venues and participants before publishing event material.

A consistent character.

Ink
#21182F

Accent
#0F8F8A

Paper
#FBF6ED

Highlight
#D5E9E1

Instrument Serif

Names and short headlines. Regular and supplied artwork; never simulate weight.

Space Grotesk

Descriptions, navigation and practical information. Use the included font files and licences.

Use dark ink on pale surfaces and white on dark ink. Bright accents are surfaces, not colours for small text. RGB values are digital references. Ask your printer for colour conversion and a physical proof.

Hyderabad Tech Week

A gathering for the people building technology in Hyderabad. By Curious Commons.

Hyderabad has people building across software, research, enterprise and creative work. We're bringing some of those conversations together, with room to share a project, ask a useful question and meet a future collaborator.

> First edition taking shape. Dates and programme to be announced. No speakers, venues or partners are implied by this kit.

Organised by Curious Commons. Press and collaboration enquiries: hello@curiouscommons.com.